The Company collects information in a variety of ways. For example, data is collected through application forms or CVs; obtained from your passport or other identity documents such as your driving licence; from forms completed by you at the start of or during employment (such as expression of wish forms); from correspondence with you; through interviews, meetings or other assessments; Employee Surveys or through HR self-service, Learning Management and Employee Benefits portals.

In some cases, the Company collects personal data about you from third parties, such as references supplied by former employers, information from employment background screening providers, information from credit reference agencies and information from credit and criminal records checks permitted by law.

Data is stored in a range of different places, including in your personnel e-file, in the Company's externally hosted HR & Benefits management systems and in other IT systems, including the Company's communication systems.

Collecting data via optional disclosure?

In addition to the above information, but only where you choose to volunteer it, we may collect information around your gender identity, sexual orientation, ethnic origin, religion, caring status and whether you consider yourself to have a disability.

It is not mandatory for you to provide this information, and you are fully entitled to not do so. We process any volunteered data in this category for the purposes of monitoring and maintaining equal opportunities across our staffing profile and as such it is aggregated and not attributable to individuals.

You may also ask for any volunteered diversity information to be removed at any time.

Why does the Company process personal data?

Version 3.4 (April 2025)

The Company needs to process data to enter into an employment contract with you and to meet its obligations under this agreement. For example, it needs to process your data to provide you with an employment contract, to pay you in accordance with your employment contract and to provide and administer benefit, pension and insurance entitlements.

In some cases, the Company needs to process data to ensure that it is complying with its legal/regulatory obligations and to manage business risk. For example (and not limited to), we are required to:

- report to the Financial Conduct Authority regarding any breach of the Individual Conduct Rules where applicable;
- report to the Information Commissioner's Office regarding breaches of Data Protection regulations;
- check your entitlement to work in the UK;
- carry out criminal records and credit checks to ensure that you are permitted to undertake the role you have been offered;
- process employee income tax and national insurance contributions as required by HMRC;
- comply with health and safety laws, to enable you to take periods of leave to which you are entitled;
- consult with employee representatives if redundancies are proposed or a business transfer is to take place; and
- comply with the requirements of the Pension Regulator and carry out pension re-enrolment activities

In other cases, the Company has a legitimate interest in processing personal data before, during and after the end of the employment relationship. Processing employee data allows the Company to:

- run recruitment, performance management and promotion processes;
- maintain accurate and up-to-date employment records and contact details (including details of who to contact in the event of an emergency), and records of employee contractual and statutory rights;
- operate and keep a record of disciplinary and grievance processes, to ensure acceptable conduct within the workplace;
- operate and keep a record of employee performance and related processes, to plan for employee and career development, and for succession planning and workforce management purposes;
- validate driving documentation to evidence no driving convictions, current MOT certificate or V5C Form and proof of motor vehicle insurance for employees whose roles are field based and involve regular travel for business purposes;
- operate and keep a record of absence and absence management procedures, to allow effective workforce management and ensure that employees are receiving the pay or other benefits to which they are entitled;
- obtain occupational health advice, to ensure that it complies with duties in relation to individuals with disabilities, meet its obligations under health and safety law, and ensure that employees are receiving the pay or other benefits to which they are entitled;

- operate and keep a record of other types of leave (including maternity, paternity, adoption, parental and shared parental leave), to allow effective workforce management, to ensure that the Company complies with duties in relation to leave entitlement, and to ensure that employees are receiving the pay or other benefits to which they are entitled;
- provide and administer company funded and employee funded benefit schemes, including the underwriting of insurance schemes, making insurance claims, providing access to voluntary benefits (such as employee discounts, wellbeing tools and preventative medical care e.g. flu vaccinations and eyecare vouchers) as and when made available by the Company;
- analyse audio quality of calls with Customers and to monitor and address any technical issues, as well as to promote best practice among colleagues,
- ensure effective general HR and business administration;
- conduct employee engagement surveys;
- gain insight that can be used to inform the Company's Diversity & Inclusion activities;
- provide training;
- provide references on request and with the consent of current or former employees;
- respond to and defend against legal claims;
- carry out adverse media screening on a quarterly basis for employees who have joined the Company since 1 January 2018; and
- maintain and promote fairness, consistency and equality in the workplace.
- comply with PAT testing requirements of Company electronic equipment issued to employees
- provide a taxi service between Ascot House and Maidenhead train station
- manage remote working abroad requests

Where the Company relies on legitimate interests as a reason for processing data, it has considered whether those reasons fundamentally prejudice the data protection rights of employees or workers and has concluded that they do not.

Some special categories of personal data, such as information about health or medical conditions, union membership and criminal records and offences data is processed to ensure fair and consistent application of Company HR Policies and to carry out employment law obligations, such as those in relation to employees with disabilities and for health and safety purposes.

Who has access to data?

Your information will be shared internally within the Company and the Barclays Group where required. This may include sharing with members of the HR Teams, your line manager, managers in the business area in which you work, hiring managers, colleagues working in the IT Teams, and colleagues involved with the compliance, financial crime and finance functions. Your information will only be shared where necessary for your colleagues to perform their roles, with data being anonymised wherever possible.

The Company shares your data with third parties that process data or process data on the Company's behalf in order to:

The Company may also share your data with third parties in the context of a sale of some or all of its business. In those circumstances the data will be subject to confidentiality arrangements.

All countries in the European Economic Area have similar standards to the UK of legal protection for information about you. Both the EU Commission and the UK Government have listed certain countries as "Approved Countries" offering an adequacy level in the protection of personal data. We may give the information to processors in countries not on those lists which are not normally considered to have the same level of data protection as in the UK, EEA or an Approved Country. If we do this, we will require the people with whom we share your information to protect it to at least UK standards, for example, by imposing contractual obligations on them, and auditing their data security measures.

How does the Company protect data?

The Company takes the security of your data seriously and has internal policies and controls in place to try to ensure that your data is not lost, accidentally destroyed, misused or disclosed, and is only accessed by its employees in the performance of their duties. Details of all Company policies can be found on the Company intranet.

Version 3.4 (April 2025)

Where the Company engages third parties to process personal data on its behalf, they do so based on written instructions, are under a duty of confidentiality and are obliged to implement appropriate technical and organisational measures to ensure the security of data. Those third parties are not permitted to further share that data with any other third party unless specifically required for the initial processing purpose, and in accordance with our contractual agreements.

For how long does the Company keep data?

The Company will hold your personal data for the duration of your employment. In accordance with other legal and regulatory rules, your data is further held for 6 years after the date of your employment ending, except where you are in a 'Senior Manager' or 'Certified Function' role as defined in the Company's Senior Manager Certification Regime policies or a member of the Company's board of directors where your data will be held indefinitely. Further information around retention periods for specific types of data is available in the HR Functional Data Retention Schedule.

Your rights

As a data subject, you have a number of rights. You can:

- ask the company to inform you for what purposes new data requests are being made;
- access and obtain a copy of your data on request;
- ask the Company to change incorrect or incomplete data;
- ask the Company to delete or stop processing your data, for example where the data is no longer necessary for the purposes of processing;
- object to the processing of your data where the Company is relying on its legitimate interests as the legal ground for processing;
- ask the company for a machine-readable copy of any data that you have provided and where it has been processed in a wholly automatic manner;
- ask the Company to stop processing data for a period if data is inaccurate or there is a dispute about whether or not your interests override the Company's legitimate grounds for processing data; and
- ask for any fully automated decisions or profiling to be manually reviewed.

If you would like to exercise any of these rights, including making a subject access request, please send an e-mail request to HRQueries@kensingtonmortgages.co.uk or DPO@kensingtonmortgages.co.uk or write to the Company's Data Protection Officer using the contact details below.

Please note that in some circumstances we will be unable to cater for these rights as your personal information is necessary for the processing of your recruitment application, or for the purposes of managing your employment with us.

If you believe that the Company has not complied with your data protection rights, you can complain to the Company's Data Protection Officer or the Information Commissioner using the contact details provided below.

Version 3.4 (April 2025)

What if you do not provide necessary personal data?

You have some obligations under your employment contract to provide the Company with data. In particular, you are required to report absences from work and may be required to provide information about disciplinary or other matters under the implied duty of good faith. You may also have to provide the Company with data to exercise your statutory rights, such as in relation to statutory leave entitlements. Failing to provide the data may mean that you are unable to exercise your statutory rights.

Certain information, such as contact details, your right to work in the UK and payment details must be provided to enable the Company to enter a contract of employment with you. If you do not provide other information, this will hinder the Company's ability to administer the rights and obligations arising because of the employment relationship efficiently.

Automated decision-making

Employment decisions are not based solely on automated decision-making.
